KEYMACRO is a feature rich desktop macro tool. It supports text macros, image macros and video macros. It is not a keyboard recorder but it does have a text field recorder. You can also create macros which can be triggered by keypresses, mouse clicks or program keystrokes. You can also create keyboard macros which will be triggered by simple keystrokes. You can then use these macros to generate macros of your own. Keymacro features: Easy to use macros creation: You can quickly create macros in the Keymacro window. There are three different types of macros you can create. Text macros create textual macros. Image macros create macros which operate on any image in the clipboard. Video macros create visual macros. These macros can be any combination of text, image or video. Keystroke macros: These macros are the simplest form of macros. Simply create a macro with the keystrokes you would like to trigger your macro. You can make the macro repeat or loop. You can also use Keymacro to create macros from a list of strings. These macros can be triggered by a particular keystroke or by any of the listed keystrokes. Macros which can be triggered by keypresses: You can also create macros which are triggered by key presses. These macros will fire for any key press. You can also have macros triggered by mouse clicks. You can have them fire for left or right clicks or double clicks. You can also have them fire for keypresses of some specific keys. The keystrokes you enter will be inserted into the macros and the macros can be triggered by pressing the Enter key. Macros triggered by program keystrokes: You can also have macros triggered by program keystrokes. Keymacro uses the program keystroke macros from the Win32 API. You can have macros triggered by a program keystroke such as Ctrl-A or Ctrl-C. Macros triggered by mouse clicks: You can also have macros triggered by mouse clicks. These macros are similar to the macros triggered by keystrokes. You can have macros triggered by left clicks and right clicks. You can also have macros triggered by double clicks. Macros that can be triggered by program keystrokes: You can also have macros triggered by program keystrokes. Keymacro uses the Win32 API program keystroke macros. You can have macros triggered by a program keystroke such as Ctrl-A or Ctrl-C. Macros that can be triggered by mouse clicks 2edc1e01e8

• Browsing • Privacy • Security • Facebook photo retriever Photo Sets is a simple to use application that allows you to view photos on Facebook users' profiles, even though they set hidden filters or disabled public view. The application resembles an Internet browser, dedicated exclusively for accessing Facebook, which can retrieve several collections of photos or videos. Enhanced Facebook application Photo Sets allows you to quickly connect to Facebook, visit a user page and view their profile photos. The application can act as a security tool, dedicated to revealing the identity of users who wish to add you to their list of friends. As a privacy and protection method, several Facebook users turn the content viewing permissions to private, which means that only friends, friends of friends or a selected group can access them. While this is a reliable solution, it can also be used for different purposes. This is why, Photo Sets allows you to retrieve their profile pictures, even if they are hidden or feature restrictions. Retrieve photos and videos Photo Sets is capable of revealing profile pictures or videos from the current user page or from their friends. You can select between four different picture and video sets, by accessing the menu at the top of the window. A yellow/green ribbon at the top edge of the window indicates whether or not the picture/video sets are ready to be displayed. However, the function only works if you are already logged in, which means you need an active Facebook account. You may easily browse Facebook and access recently visited pages, using the dedicated buttons in the Navigation menu. Facebook photo retriever Photo Sets is an easy to use application that allows you to retrieve profile photos or videos for Facebook users, as well as their friends. Peter Reik Peter Reik (born 1940) is a German-born immunologist and molecular biologist, who was awarded the Nobel Prize in Medicine in 1987 "for his discoveries concerning antigen recognition in the immune system". Early life and education Peter Reik was born in the village of Oberhausen in the Ruhr area of North-West Germany. He became interested in biology at an early age when his parents had a butcher shop. Reik studied biochemistry and microbiology in Bremen and began work in the immunological research unit of the German Cancer Research Centre (DKFZ) in Heidelberg in 1966. He obtained his PhD in 1969 and was made a full professor of immunology and virology in 1972. Work Reik was the first to isolate, purify, and identify the primary antibody receptor on B-lymphocytes, MHC (major histocompatibility complex) protein. This proved fundamental to the development of the immunology field. By characterizing the "structure and function of the antigen-recognition receptor",
